JUST IN TIME FOR CHRISTMAS... MY NEW BOOK!

ROSELINE DELEU

'Feng Shui Steps for your Career' has been written with a dear friend Jutta Clark who has been in the recruiting industry for many years. We combined our knowledge of business and Feng Shui to give birth to this unique book on the market.

A paperback book printed on recycled paper, 182 pages filled with inner research exercises and ideas to enhance your life.

* Buy first a copy for you to make 2006 your life changing year!

* Purchase also copies for your friends in time to wrap them under the Christmas tree (or we will send them to their address with your compliments).

* AU$ 15 per book + P&H

(print your order form through www.fengshuisteps.com under 'Books and Products')

Orders paid by cheque or money order, received at our address in QLD before 10 Dec 2005 will be sent immediately. Orders after this date will be dispatched in January. Credit card orders through my publisher will only be available in 2006 as more books are shipped—sorry for the inconvenience.

THE FENG SHUI COURSE YOU HAVE ALWAYS DREAMT OF BY DI HOLLAND

The first week of October was a very special week for me. It was the week in which I attended Roseline's Feng Shui Practitioner's Certificate Course.

The reason for doing the course was purely to participate and learn more about a topic which has always been very special to me. This course provide me with an incredible depth of knowledge on Feng Shui principles from day one.

Like all first days on a course or in a new environment they can be uncomfortable but Roseline's friendly approach and welcoming place had the team at ease within a few short minutes.

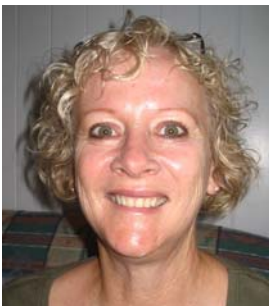

An enormous amount of information was learnt during this week and the professional way in which the information was passed on to the class through Roseline's unique and dedicated training program was brilliant.

The course provided practical as well as anecdotal experiences which were shared by all. We had on-site visits to shopping centres, restaurants and a visit to the local park to learn how to use our newly acquired dowsing rods which was good fun.

Members of the team also completing the course were wonderful and it was such a pleasure to spend a week with like-minded people who I now can call my friends. I highly recommend this course to anyone who like me has an interest in Feng Shui it will give you a very comprehensive understanding and practical use of the principles involved.

I can honestly say that this course has been life changing for me - although I still have a long way to go I look forward to the journey.

Kind regards

Feng Shui...
Flaming Shit
Flipping Silly
Finally Shifting
Financially Secure

There is not 1 thing in our lives that has not been altered in the last 2 weeks from piles of crap leaving the house.

My husb quit his job
My husb is leaving town
The family has no idea where they will be in 3 months time or where my husb will be in 1 weeks time or when after that i will see my husb.

Its cleaner, its tidier, its lighter
Its blankness, numbness, its scary Its exciting, its teary, its laughter
Its pains in my stomach and diarrhoea in the toilet

Sometimes we cant eat.
Sometimes we cant stop eating.
I have even taken up drinking to celebrate or numb myself not sure which but the feeling fluctuates.

Its fear of the unknown and excitement at a blank canvas with us and God holding the paint brush.

The tissue box has been replaced by the toilet roll.

Questions...

Where will the dog go?
How do you wash a dog let alone, worm it?
How much does the rubbish smell when it is transported in my little car?
How do you pump water from a dam or a bore into the tank?
How do I set the automatic sprinklers?
What do I put into the spa to keep it fresh?

BEFORE

The message was 'Leave us alone'
- sofas were turned with their back to entering Chi
- TV was the first thing you see as you enter, this leads to lack of communication in a family
- too many different objects and too many different heights

AFTER

The message is now : 'Welcome life opportunities'
- de clutter
- change orientation of sofas
- CDs and DVDs sorted by colour
- TV is no more the focal point

Am I fearful of change?

No, I am grabbing it with both hands and looking forward to the leaning experience of using the ride on mower and whipper snipper and using round up or gassing my own car when I am feeling very tired I will handle always having my own choice at getting the type of groceries for the moment and remembering to collect my child from childcare on the way home from work before I arrive home and from leaving work early twice a week to get my child to karate before his lesson his half over .

This is an opportunity for growth and the reality I have taken my husband for granted on more than 1 occasion and is resulting already in a deepening of our love. I am looking forward to the opportunity for exercise created when I have to get up and get another drink of water because I have just lost 2 more litres from crying and the exercise I will get getting up at night to check out every little noise I hear that I have not been aware of while William was here

I look forward to the future with great anticipation and have to remind myself to keep breathing and to continue to eat healthy.

An opportunity for growth like no other has presented itself to me all in the name of Feng Shui.

The Wife

Out with the old and in with the new.

What a couple of weeks of change and now upheaval.

I can't say it has been pleasurable in the short term, it's been bloody scary.

BUT!!! I know in the medium to long term the quality of our family life together will be massively improved. Sure we will have more physical things, but we will have grown spiritually together far more than we are now nothing will be beyond us then we will be flying with the eagles to unbelievable heights.

We will know we will never fall no matter what life throws at us
We stand strong against the tide together.

The Husband

(the one who is now finding an inner strength he didn't know he possessed)

SELECTING A WORK OF ART

BY ROBIJN ZEPHYR ALEXANDA

Feng Shui and selecting a work of art for your room, home or business.

I recently completed a Feng Shui Practitioner course with Roseline Deleu and became aware of the power of an individual work of art in a new way that compliments my job as an art curator. In short it has given me a new perspective for my work and a rethink for what I display at home.

Feng Shui, wind & water, is associated with change and movement. We usually associate a work of art, a painting, photograph or sculpture as a static object.

Thus symbolically, if you want change in some aspect of your life then you might like to move some of the works of art or visual objects to assist the process of movement or Chi for more energy and awareness. For example: we all have experienced being surprised when something familiar is altered and others notice the difference.

You move your art,
you are in control of changes in your space.

From our past we can all recall some work of art we associate with pleasant or unpleasant experiences, as we also respond to furniture, rooms, buildings, gardens and streets. Some art is inspirational, some art is scary and some can be offensive. All work of art makes an impression and can make an impact on us.

How to get started and what to do?

- Look at the art you have on display around you carefully.
- Did you choose the items? Does it reflect you now?
- Is your place full of clutter?
- Do you notice your art or not?
- What does the work of art say?
- What is the subject?
- How has it been made and has the artist made something creative and inspiring or is the work of art part of a production line?
- Do you move your art around from time to time?
- Do you give your art work a rest and put it away from time to time?
- Have you attempted to make your own art?

Suggestions for selections

If you want an improvement in health, select images of healthy people looking at the viewer, healthy food and healthy activities.

For a change in relationship consider images of a relationship you desire, with people looking at each other.

For travel, select pictures of the desired destination or similar.

The display can be enhanced by placing these images in an auspicious position within the nine square Feng Shui layout of a room or building. Perhaps these images may be on display temporarily but you will then get used to relating to the visuals around you and it will help you select a more permanent work of art.

The most popular and enduring subject for display in homes is narrative art, that is art that tells a story about people. Narrative art can be as diverse as a bill board sign, a comic strip or as complex as a religious icon. Most people have narrative art in their homes in the form of a family photographs, holiday snaps or portraits. These can be updated and redesigned for display. Incidentally, popular narrative art is often the best financial investment, because it stays popular.

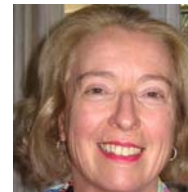

A change in attitude and a change of the art around us can help.

What to avoid

Images of loneliness, dead objects, war, violence, people with their backs to the viewer, depressing subjects and anything that is personally offensive or negative to you.

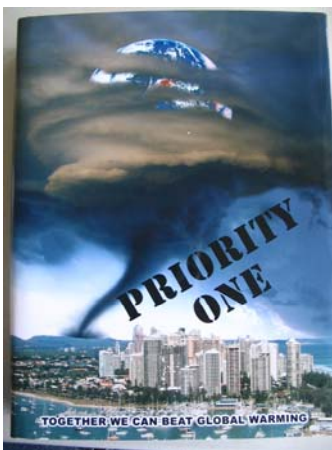

Conclusion

In summary, the best art is timeless and reassuring and will keep you engaged. The ideal is to choose one good work of art rather than numerous images. You want your art to reflect you in the present and be something you enjoy. You want to feel inspired and renewed by your work of art.

BOOK REVIEW

TITLE: PRIORITY ONE—Together We Can Beat Global Warming

AUTHOR: Allan J. Yeomans

RRP: $49.95 + P&H

GUEST REVIEWER: Roseline Deleu

ISBN 0-646-43805-9

Hard cover copy—492 pages

Purchase through www.yeomansplow.com.au or in any good bookstore.

This book has been aptly described as 'The Bible' on global warming and climate change.

It is also the first book that presents a clear-cut plan of attack to not only slow global warming but to totally reverse its insidious growth and restore world weather to pre-industrial normals. It is a must for all concerned citizens. Priority One is an easy to read, extremely well-researched book, full of fascinating facts.

SOUL SEARCH GAME

RECOMMENDED BY ROSELINE DELEU

When three friends walked into the Bundaberg State Development and Innovation Centre to register their new business name this year, they had no idea they were doing it on Women's Empowerment Day! Their goal was to create a light hearted family board game about the journey of life, suitable for 1 or more players, and to do it by Christmas.

Shelley Peters, Sally Turner and Evie Mc Kinna chose the business name, Soul Search Enterprises, for the game they called "Soul Search Game". Their slogan is "Dare to Take the Journey". This is a game with 100 powerful messages on a colourful board on which the player or players move by rolling a dice. The Soul Search Game also features 4 packs of Cards with positive messages from Angels and Animals and Fortune and Affirmation statements to guide you on your Journey. The Soul Search Game is fun, enlightening, challenging and inspirational.

What made them do it? "Life teaches us many lessons", said Evie, who has been an intuitive counsellor for 33 years. "This Game will help people who often repeat the same mistakes, because it will make them think." Why don't people learn life's lessons?

We asked ourselves that question and many more, and came up with a game full of insights and gentle, (and some not so gentle), reminders and solutions for people to think about.

"The Soul Search Game is primarily about having fun", said Sally, "and if the person happens to be 'soul searching', many insights can be gained."

Evie and Sally have been involved in helping people feel better, both emotionally and physically for many years, and have come to realize that each person's journey is different and that to really improve, that person must share the responsibility for their own healing. Shelley thinks that this game is a way for people to look at life from a different perspective and do something about it if they so choose.

Shelley, Sally and Evie see The Soul Search Game as an excellent gift. Buy it for yourself! "We decided to release The Soul Search Game at the pre-Christmas Special price of $65 (plus postage) and it has been selling itself!" said the owners. Once it gets into the shops, it will sell for up to $79. Designed to be played by one person as well as many, the Soul Search Game is the Gift that Keeps Giving!

Shelley Peter's friends will recognize her artistic talents in the beautiful Angel, Affirmation, Animal Totem and Fortune Cards and the stunning packaging for the Game. Sally's humour and healing abilities, and Evie's common sense solutions to life's ups and downs shine through this empowering game about life. The girls challenge to you is "Dare to Take the Journey".

To order, phone Shelley on (07)41523824, Sally on 0427174247 or Evie on (07) 38030209, or download the order form from the website <http://www.soulsearchenterprises.com> will be regularly updated as stockists in other areas become involved.
